Dear parents & friends,

Let us introduce you to Allowah Presbyterian Children’s Hospital... and tell you about some changes in what we offer.

Allowah Presbyterian Children’s Hospital is a hospital like no other. We care for children who have physical and intellectual disabilities such as genetic or chromosomal disorders, birth trauma, cerebral palsy, head injuries, and conditions acquired after birth. We care for children with complex health care and rehabilitation needs.

Allowah is licensed by the NSW Ministry of Health as a Medical/Paediatric/Rehabilitation Hospital. We provide both inpatient care and day admissions for children from birth to 18 years of age, for rehabilitation (coming in 2016) or for medical care. Care is provided for children with a broad range of conditions, in a physical environment that has been specifically designed and built as a children’s hospital. Our staff are exceptional in the way that they care for the children.

Allowah also provides Early Intervention & Therapy Services. We can help your child to develop early skills in movement, communication, play, feeding and self-care and improve your confidence in being able to enhance your child’s development. We will also assist with smooth transition into preschool and school.

Allowah is now also a registered National Disability Insurance Scheme provider. We provide a broad range of services under NDIS, including short term accommodation (respite), assessment, behaviour support, physical wellbeing, early childhood supports, specialist equipment setup... and more! We can also offer respite for children with individual ADHC packages until the NDIS is introduced in your area.

To find out more, visit our website at www.allowah.org.au or give us a call and make a time to visit to find out how we could help your child.
